Middle Years Program

Created by: S. Mohler, M. Mullen, V. Todaro
Language B Standard: Spanish (10th Grade)
Course Outline

Course Description

This class is a beginning introduction to the Spanish language and to the culture of the Spanish speaking world. It is part of the Language B requirement for the International Baccalaureate Middle Years Program at Mount Clemens High School. The basic concepts of the language will be developed, practiced and mastered. Knowledge of a basic functional vocabulary as well as a working understanding of the present tense, the preterite/simple past, the imperfect and the commands will be reviewed. More reading for comprehension, oral presentation skill development, and individual writing application will take place. Pronunciation, comprehension and expressive abilities will be stressed through the introduction and development of the conversational approach to language learning which utilizes the total physical response techniques in student performed group conversations. These conversations first come from the textbook dialogues. The skill to write original conversations will be developed. Multimedia technology will be incorporated into the development of these conversations.

The purpose of the 10th Grade Language B Spanish course at Mount Clemens High School is to provide students with an alternative method of communication, insights into various cultures, and the skills necessary to function effectively within these cultures. Students will also be able to develop insights into their own culture and the culture of others, better understand their own language and culture, build upon knowledge of other disciplines using the target language, and become more active participants in the global community. Students will explore areas of communication common to their own lives in both their native language and in Spanish.

The 10th Grade Language B Spanish course at Mount Clemens High will allow students to develop the attributes of the International Baccalaureate's Learner Profile. Students will have the opportunity to inquire into language use and language structures. They will use the language to acquire information and to make sense of the world around them. Students will also become thinkers, as they attempt to express their thoughts and ideas clearly and effectively in the Spanish language. They will also become communicators--competent users of oral and written language forms in a variety of situations. They will listen attentively and pay attention to detail, and they will speak confidently and clearly. Students will also take risks, as they attempt to read, write, and speak in situations where they may not feel completely confident in their abilities. Students will also aim to be knowledgeable, having acquired the vocabulary and understanding necessary to discuss language structures and cultural aspects of the Spanish language. Students will become principled and aware that language is a powerful tool that must be used responsibly. Students will aim to develop a sense of caring in their use of the language and will become aware of how the use of language can affect others. They will also aim to be open-minded, as they will respect differences and similarities between languages, dialects and personal communication styles. Students will strive to be balanced--able to express themselves orally as well as in writing and find a balance between listening and speaking when communicating with others. Spanish students will reflect on their language development and consciously work at improving their language proficiency.

V. Methodology

Through Differentiated Instruction, Cooperative Learning, Guided and Independent Activities. Total Physical Response (TPR), Educational Games. Presentations, Lectures. Authentic Resources (music, film, etc.) and Role Plays the students will acquire second language skills in three different areas:

Listening and Speaking (Oral Communication):

Students will become proficient at giving and receiving information and sharing thoughts and opinions orally in Spanish. Through frequent listening and speaking activities, students will become comfortable creating language spontaneously, in situations which are both familiar and unfamiliar. Students will also be exposed to different regional isoglosses of the language so that they may learn to appreciate the variations and causes for those variations in the language. Speaking activities will include everyday conversation, role play, interviews, debates, and formal presentations. Listening materials will include film, television, news programs, music, and radio programs.

Reading:

Students will be exposed to a variety of texts in this course in order to develop a deeper understanding of the contexts in which different types of language are used. Students will learn to find and use information in functional texts such as newspaper articles, travel brochures, advertisements, instructions, and schedules. Students will read business and friendly letters to analyze tone and register. Students will also sample literary works including written by Spanish and Latin American authors.

Writing:

Students will produce written language using appropriate form writing various texts. Students will begin to learn to compare and contrast, develop and support opinions, and generate responses to what they have read or heard. They will write various texts including business and friendly letters, film and book reviews,
